Journalism Club To Choose Pin

CENTRAL HIGH—Members of the Journalism Club are deciding between two pins to represent the club. The pins may include a chain guard at each member's choice. The chain guard will include a pin designating the president, vice president, secretary or reporter.

About 12 members of the Journalism Club toured the Citizen-Advertiser newspaper plant Thursday.

The rest will take the tour next week.

Mrs. Connie Grant Teaches Part-Time

CENTRAL HIGH—Mrs. Connie Grant, graduate of Cortland State College, is an assistant part-time gym teacher at Central High School. She lives at 15 Third Ave. in Owasco with her husband and three children.

Her hobbies include playing the ukelele, skiing and painting. When asked her opinion of Central High School she replied, "I love it, and I like the kids."

Junior Honor Unit Initiates, Elects

CORTLAND HIGH — The National Junior Honor Society at Central High School held its second meeting Nov. 4. This meeting, under the supervision of Mrs. Evelyn Lasher, eighth grade English teacher, was conducted by the president, Deborah Wojnar.

New members were initiated and committees named for the meetings to come.

They are: refreshment committee, Charles Mryglot, Dana Martino, Michael Buffington; showcase committee, Nadine Novak, Penny Powers, Ann Bunker; entertainment committee, Natalie Heckel, Hope Defendorf, Kathy Buffington.

Central Pair Polls People On How They'd Be President

While the election excitement still lingers, we thought it appropriate to question some of our fellow students about what their actions would be if elected to a high office, such as President of the United States. In our opinion, the future of our country will some day largely depend on the dreams and ideas of our present-day high school students. If you wonder at the appropriateness of questioning girls about this important problem, we consider it within the realm of possibility that time will bring us a woman president. Perhaps this poll will inform us in a small way as to how strong our country will be in the years to come.

By Debbie Gauthier and Penny Hodge

Dave Sargent, 14, freshman:

"If I were President, I would be for the people, that is the citizens, and only do what they wanted, considering that it was positively the best for their welfare. Peace not only in our nation, but among all nations would be one of my main tasks. I would try to get more bills into Congress on civil rights, poverty programs and bills to preserve our natural resources. I would try to promote love for my fellow man because true peace can not be attained without this love."

Nadine Novak, 14, freshman:

"If I were President I would try harder to promote world peace. I'd like to see an international space program in which all countries would participate. In working together like this we would not only gain scientific knowledge, but also a better understanding of our fellow man."

Jacqueline Deo, freshman

"First, I would establish peace in Viet Nam by ending all bombing on the North, and then I would form a treaty that would be acceptable to the Communists as well as the South Vietnamese.

"Next I would concern myself with solving problems centered in the United States. I would pass a stronger law forbidding discrimination because of race, color or creed. I would see to it that the Negro is treated fairly by all people.

"Last, I would spend a little less time, money and manpower on our space project, but instead, search for more practical things such as the cure for cancer or leukemia. After a cure for all the diseases which are killing our people was found, I would continue the space project."

Bob Marks, senior:

"Right now, if anybody asked me the question 'what would you do if you were President?' I would probably be able to think of hundreds of changes to make. But then as I consider these changes I think that they are either impractical or impossible. Besides, when one is President, one can not always do what one wants to do. The President must think of the world situation, his own conscience and most of all, he must consider what the people of the United States want.

"Yes, if I were President, I believe I would follow the same pattern that President Johnson has followed. He has a great job, and I only wish that if I become President I can do an equally great job."

Linda Reed, Junior:

"The presidency would be a great achievement for any person. If I were the President I would probably try to put an end to the fighting in Viet Nam without jeopardizing the freedom of the people of that country.

"At home, I would try to do something about lowering taxes. The money from taxes would go to the people in some way, such as the removal of slums, medicare for the underprivileged, schools and scholarships.

"I would also try to improve our relations with other countries. Not by just giving them the aid to use as they want to, but by showing them how they can use it."

Pam Brooks, Senior

"If I were President I would see if we could shorten the war in Viet Nam. I would see if there was any way in which we could make peace with the people of North Viet Nam. Then we would not have to send our future generations' over there to get shot or blown up by a mine or a bomb.

"Next, I would try to see if I could find a way to unite East and West Germany. As President I would let the people have their say in the government. I would not let the politicians of the government run this territory. I would see if I could repeal all of the bad bills that come to me to be signed.

Saturday Hayrides Scheduled

EAST HIGH — The fall spirit is in the air this weekend. Both the junior and senior classes of East High have scheduled hayrides for Saturday night. The juniors plan to start at 6:45 p.m. at Cunningham Riding Stables with Mr. and Mrs. Grant and Mr. and Mrs. Clarke chaperoning.

The seniors also will meet at Cunningham's at 7:30 p.m. The hayrides were planned by junior class president Rick Gunsalus, G.O. vice president Bil Moon, and senior Jim Pils.

Central Has New Reading Program

CENTRAL HIGH — This school now offers a new program, that of developmental reading. Students in grades 9 through 12 who are not able to do the school work teachers expect of them, may enroll in these classes.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Ann Crossley, reading specialist at Central, these students continue to be taught reading skills in a sequential program of instruction that is designed to reinforce and extend the skills and appreciations acquired in previous years, and to develop new skills as they are needed.

Most students now attending feel that the program has helped them considerably in their other subjects, especially English and American History.

Comments from some of the students now participating follow. Kathie O'Conner says:

"I understand what I've read and I can do my book reports much better. I really enjoy the class."

Karen Decker: "This class has helped me understand my history and I get much more out of all my work. I enjoy the class also."

Beverly DelFavero commented: "I understand and get much more out of my English and American History. I also enjoy the class."

Dorothy Barnes says: "I think this reading class will help me understand my subjects better and will raise my marks. I enjoy the class very much."

Gloria Sroka says: "My business, social studies and English are much easier. I can read a lot faster and I understand the meaning of words much better."

Mr. Joseph DeSantis, junior high guidance counselor at Central, says that reading is of basic importance.

Mark Jasniewski In East Spotlight

EAST HIGH— This week East spotlights senior Mark Jasniewski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Jasniewski of 36 Moris St. Mark is a member of the track team. He played freshman football. He is a member of Lyceum, Future Teachers of America, East Wind staff and the Arrow staf.

Mark is a member of Seward Tri-Hi-Y. He enjoys drawing and takes an art course at Auburn Community College. He also enjoys both water and snow skiing. Upon graduation, Mark plans to attend Alfred University and study art.

Lincoln Bust Presented

EAST HIG H — Mrs. Betty Welgoss has presented a bust of Lincoln to East High School.Mr. George S. Murphy, principal, acknowleged the gift with a letter of appreciation on behalf of the students and faculty of the school. Mrs. Priscilla Hoffman, librarian, reports that many people have commented on the bust which is on top of the center book shelf in the library. Mr. Nicholas Douglas, industrial arts instructor, made a small plaque for it saying "Presented by Mrs. Betty Welgoss, 1966."

Member of Blue Key

Miss Mary Kirkwood, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Allan H. Kirkwood, 73 South Street, has been selected for membership in Blue Key at Lasell Junior College, Auburndale, Mass. Blue Key members are seniors who have been chosen by students and administration as best representing the ideals and traditions of Lasell. They serve as hostesses during freshman orientation period and as guides throughout the year. Miss Kirkwood is a 1965 graduate of Emma Willard School, Troy. She is a liberal arts major at Lasell.

PTA Has Dance

The Significance of Veterans Day

ESSAY BY DAVE SARGENT
Central High Junior

Yesterday was a normal day, like any other day for a family, except the children were home from school and the man of the house, also was probably home for the day. You may have awakened and asked yourself, "What day is today?" You thought it over and said, "Friday and no Work!!!", and that was the end of that. But you left out the most important reason —Veterans Day. Well, what is the reason for Veterans Day?

Veterans Day had its beginning in 1918, to mark an armistice agreement ending World War I, and was called Armistice Day until 1954, when Nov. 11 became known as Veterans Day. This is supposed to be a day set aside for the honoring of the courageous men and women who have served in the armed forces. But, how many times have you walked up to a veteran and thanked him for protecting the heritage and freedom of the U.S. Silly?? It may seem so, but it truly is not! For if it were not for courageous people the U.S. would still be a colony of England, still be a land of slaves or be ruled by other countries, such as Japan, Germany, Italy or Russia.

All the hardships these veterans had to endure are not much thought of by us. Leaving your loved ones, freezing, starving, fatigued to the extent of a breakdown, and seeing a friend shot are things which thousands have never witnessed, but this was a part of life for these little-honored veterans.

We must remember it is because of the brave deeds of these people that the United States has become a great nation.

ACC Library Named Depository For Documents

The Auburn Community College library has been named a depository for New York State documents, Mrs. Eloise F. Hilbert, head librarian, said today.

She noted that the depository, one of about 20 in the state, will contain annual reports of state departments as released by the state library, as well as selected nondepository items such as legislative hearings and state library bibliographies which may be received upon request.

Mrs. Hilbert said ACC requested to be made a depository because the materials received will be useful in primary research for work in history courses. Also, she said that with the exception of court libraries, there are no other depositories in Cayuga County.

French Library Added at Central

CENTRAL HIGH — An addition has been made to the school library — a French library consisting of books and materials about France. Most of the books are written in French, but some have been translated into English for the convenience of the readers. There are paperbacks, filmstrips, a weekly newspaper, magazines, a young people's encyclopedia, and French dictionaries.

Also available are various American stories such as "Diary of Anne Frank," Jules Verna's books, and the books by Antoine de Saint Exupery, which also are written in French.

This library makes available to the student a great variety of stories and other materials. It can be helpful to students doing special projects on specific topics.

Mrs. Evelyn M. Berlew, school librarian, says the students will enjoy the books and find them interesting and informative.

The State Department of Education urges that more French be taught and spoken among high school students. These French books were bought through the National Education Act, and some were transferred to the library from the French room by Mrs. Gaetana T. Watts, French teacher at Central.

Sherwood Open House

Sherwood School PTA will have an open house, dessert party and bazaar Wednesday from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Teachers will be in their rooms to meet and talk with parents from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Baked goods and Christmas gifts will be on sale, as well as dessert and beverages. This is the PTA's only money-making project of the year.

High Schoolers Work Part Time To Get Experience

By ANN MARIE NEWART

CENTRAL HIGH — Many juniors and seniors at Central High have been taking part-time jobs in stores, businesses, schools, and hospitals of Auburn. Some of the students are using their money as a college fund, while others use it for spending money; but all are gaining valuable experience for the years ahead.

Several of the students who work to gain extra are in a program called distributive education, which is being offered at Central for the first time this year. Under this program, the students attend a class in which they discuss their jobs, as well as general principles of retailing. Then, after school they leave for work to put their knowledge to practical use. They receive marks for both their class work and their efficiency on the job.

Other students have found work in the hospitals or at the Red Cross Center. Some do volunteer work, such as the candy stripers, while others work in the office, the kitchen, and therapy departments.

The Youth Corps employs many senior high students, both in its offices and in the offices of many businesses in Auburn. Others work as secretaries for the guidance counselors at Central High.

Central students have been active in obtaining and maintaining part-time jobs.

Club Spotlights Vice President

Auburn High Lettermen's Club spotlights John Cogar, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cogar, 26 Pioneer Dr., Fairport, a senior attending East High School. John is vice president of the Auburn High Lettermen's Club and treasurer of the Class of '67.

He has just completed a successful season as a member of the Auburn Maroon Football Squad. He played fullback, was the team's leading scorer and was voted "outstanding back" by his teammates and the Varsity coaching staff. John also lettered in track.

His hobbies include water-skiing and weight lifting. He also enjoys listening to folk music.

John hopes to go on to college to take up engineering and play football. He is undecided about his choice of a college, but is considering Duke, Cornell and Syracuse.

LATE BUT LUCKY

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Jim Siewert, a Louisvillian studying in Athens, Greece, decided to visit the Acropolis but reached the landmark at dusk—too late to be admitted.

As Siewert stood admiring the view, a car pulled up and out stepped King Constantine and Queen Anne, followed by Queen Mother Fredericka and her three daughters.

The royal party started inside and the King beckoned Siewert to follow.

For an hour he browsed through the ancient ruins, with Queen Fredericka providing a running commentary.

GONE, FORGOTTEN

GLASGOW, Ky. (AP)—When one firm announced it was interested in locating here, Paul Holman agrees to take a census to help find prospective workers.

He stopped at one house and asked the woman: "Are you married?"

"I have been married three times," came the response.

"Give me the names of your husbands," said Holman.

She rattled off the names of the first and third but couldn't remember the second husband.

"I just can't think of it," she said finally, "but I knowed him quite well."

Better Student, Better Driver

Good students, those with a B average or better, are safer drivers than their lower marked classmates. This safer driving record was measured over the last four years among 68,000 boys aged 16 to 25 whose academic record qualified them for an automobile insurance discount of 20 per cent.

The young men racked up a dramatically better accident record while full-time students in high schools, colleges or universities. They averaged 348 car damage claims per year per 1,000 policies as compared with the under 25 age average of 498 claims, or 150 less claims per 1,000. The "Good Student" drivers' claims had an average cost of $183 while the rest averaged $196.

Four years ago State Farm Insurance Company decided to test its belief that good students were better drivers. They gave a 20 per cent discount to honor students and kept careful records for the four years. The results indicate that the "Good Student" driver's record is clearly 25 to 30 per cent better than the young men who did not qualify for the discount.

As a result the discount to good students is being increased to 25 per cent. The theory is that good students spend "more time cracking books and hence have less time to crack fenders." There is also a theory which cannot be proven that good students are simply more responsible individuals.

In the accidents involving injuries, "Good Student" drivers were involved an average of 23.5 times annually per 1,000 policies. Their fellow students had 29.7 such mishaps per 1,000. The average loss on "Good Student" drivers was $958, while the other drivers averaged $1,109.

The figures are particularly important because drivers between the ages of 16 and 25 have the highest accident, injury and death rate of any driving group. The 21 million drivers aged 16 to 25 represent only 19.8 per cent of the driving population but account for 30.7 per cent of all accidents and 31.5 per cent of accidents in which deaths occur.
