District Attorney Kenyon announced that another indictment against Cyganik had been found by the Grand Jury charging him with the unlawful practice of medicine and that he would move the case for trial at the next term of court.

Attorney Albert H. Clark made application for the release of his client on his own recognizance pending that trial to which District Attorney Kenyon made vigorous objection, contending that the bail bond should be at least $1,000. Attorney Clark appealed to the court that the nature of the misdemeanor did not warrant any bond of such amount and Judge Mosher fixed the amount of bail at $500.

Cyganik has been in jail since September 13, following the autopsy on body of Peter Gierowski of Pulister Street. Cyganik was charged with manslaughter, the alleged manipulation of the broken back of Gierowski, causing the latter's death. He was indicted by the October Grand Jury.

The trial attracted some little attention among the residents of the Polish colony in the northwest part of the city, a few residents being present during the trial. Cyganik was taken back to jail pending his furnishing bail bond which he will undoubtedly secure.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA ARE ASKED TO OBSERVE "GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY"

Members of the Owasco Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution have received through their regent, Miss Grace W. Quick, a request from Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, chairman of the National Woman's Committee on the Near East Relief, that the Daughters observe "Golden Rule Sunday," December 2, by heeding the plea of all persons who are disposed to make a practical application of the Golden Rule to the request to provide for their Sunday dinner approximately the same menu that is approved and provided for at least 50,000 of the children in the Near East orphanages.

The menu as adapted and proposed for American homes will be adequate in nutritive food value and palatable in form. Oscar, the famous chef of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Miss Bradley of the Farmer School of Cookery and others are providing special recipes in forms in which to serve the orphanage menus in American homes.

The differences between the cost of the usual Sunday dinner and the simpler, less expensive orphanage menu is to be given as a contribution and thank-offering for the purchase of food for the orphans of the Near East. Descriptive cards, circulars and menus may be had for asking from 151 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Woman Sent to Prison. Sentenced to Auburn Prison for two years following a conviction of assault in the second degree upon her niece, Mrs. Mary Bloodgood, 39, of Orwell, heard her sentence pronounced in Oswego County Court without a demonstration. The case attracted country wide attention because of its brutality, it having been charged that the defendant beat her niece with a club, cut her with a knife and used a five ring halter in punishing her. When the niece appeared before the Grand Jury on November 4 she was a mass of bruises. In the matter of election to municipal councils the women of Sweden are said to have made greater progress than their sisters in other countries. Nearly 500 Swedish women now serve as members of the local lawmaking bodies.

COOLIDGE WORKS ON HIS MESSAGE

Washington, Nov. 24.—President Coolidge today began the final polishing of his forthcoming message to Congress, which many observers believe will have an important bearing on his future political fortunes. He completed the main part of his work on the document yesterday, and all that remains to be done before it is sent to the printer, is the clarification of the language of several sections. The message is expected to be brief, White House officials having made it known that the President intends to present his recommendations without long argument or discussion but on the basis of what he feels to be their intrinsic soundness. Little is known of the details of its principal sections which will deal with taxation, agricultural relief and transportation. No general building program will be recommended, it is said, but the executive is expected to suggest that Congress make a start on a program for the better housing of government departments and bureaus in the District of Columbia.

LEATHER LUNGS

Part of Meter That Determines Its Accuracy Made of Sheepskin. When gas was first manufactured and distributed there were no meters and it was sold by the number of burners used. The first meter was invented about 1815 and thirty years later appeared the type of gas meter that has remained virtually unchanged ever since. Its accuracy, imperviousness to temperature changes and endurance depended upon the leather lungs of the two drums that alternately inhale and exhale the gas feeding it from the main into the house pipes and measuring it on the little disk above. The leather lungs, or diaphragms, are made from the skins of New Zealand sheep. It is only in the land of the Mooris that their perfect sheep skin can be raised. There are no barbed wire fences to cause abrasions that would later produce a defective gas meter, or ticks and similar parasites that scar the skins and make them unsuitable. New Zealand sheep skins could not be imported during the World War, and as a result of makers of gas meters tried very available substitute and discovered that there was nothing "just as good." The importation was taken up again at the earliest possible moment and has grown steadily larger to meet the demands for the ever-increasing number of meters in use.—Utility Bulletin. Rally for Young Men. Deep interest is being manifested by the men and older boys of Auburn and vicinity in the big meeting for men only, announced for tomorrow at the local Y. M. C. A. The popular evangelist Harold Strathearn, who is holding meetings in the city, is to be the principal speaker, and he will discuss the question Why So Many Men Fail? This address has been given at great men's meetings in other cities, and is very highly spoken of, as dealing in a frank, yet fair manner with the weaknesses of some men, and suggesting methods whereby these weaknesses may be overcome. Mr. Strathearn, the evangelist singer, is arranging a male chorus to sing at the meeting, and there will be other attractive musical features. The meeting is announced for 3 o'clock.

Throughout His Life, Moore is Guided by Strange Beliefs. One of the first things a traveler notices in a Moorish town are the "hands," painted or drawn, on the walls of many houses and buildings. These are to avert the "evil spirit," five, the number of fingers, is considered a sacred number. These hands are also worn in the form of ornaments, and serve to keep off the "evil one." As in Europe, the housewife is frequently seen over doorways. Moore considers it a great sin to cut bread with a knife, declaring that our hands were given us to break it. The same idea accounts for the saying that "to tread on corn is to tread on angels." Offerings of food, hair and other small articles are often placed in the trunks of certain trees, and have a quaint significance. As the makers of these offerings are poor Moors with large families, they firmly believe that Allah will be pleased and will give them means to support their families. Some Moors declare that, after this offering, their children are safe, and therefore, cost less to keep. At another religious celebration spiked balls are thrown into the air and allowed to fall on the throwers' heads. The man who appears the most injured and ferocious is considered the most truly religious. Moorish marriages are performed at midnight, and the bride is confined to her room for several days after the ceremony. No Moorish woman who is truly religious is seen in the streets at any time, except in cases of absolute necessity. Life is indeed different from that in Europe.—Exchange.

30 Rigs on Market. About 30 rigs were on hand at the Franklin Street public market this morning. All had their rigs piled high with poultry and fall vegetables of excellent quality. Trading was brisk. The poultry included ducks, chickens, geese but no turkey gobblers were in sight. The potatoes and apples found ready sale at $1 a bushel and onions at $2 per bushel.
