OLD SOL BEATS DOWN ON AUBURN

Old Sol beat down on Auburn today, sending the mercury up to 92 degrees on downtown thermometers, protected from the direct heat of the sun.

This topped by four degrees the official figures at upper pumping station on Owasco Lake.

Folks who were on the streets or in office buildings puffed, perspired on what was easily the hottest day of the year so far. Air conditioning and cooling beverages were in demand. People who a few days ago were shivering were complaining of the heat and humidity.

Summer will officially begin tomorrow, June 21. Then will come the longest day of the year with plenty of time for work—or play—between dawn and dark.

More Lessons Needed

Detroit (UP) — Thomas L. Stokes, a 51-year-old factory worker, realized today that one driving lesson doesn't make a driver.

After his first lesson, Stokes persuaded a used car dealer to let him drive a 1947 model around the block. He never got that far.

Stokes stamped on the accelerator, sideswiped a brand new car, careened another 150 feet and crashed into a utility pole. A judge fined him $25 for reckless driving and advised him to take more lessons.
